Item Number 126-DATA -- Innovative Interfaces, Inc.'s CASE (Content Access Service) delivers comprehensive journal date coverage data to make access to and management of Library resources faster and easier. CASE content includes journal packages (such as Elsevier Science's ScienceOnline), aggregator databases (such as a library might purchase from EBSCO), and when appropriate, individual journal titles. All the formats listed here (citation, abstract, full-text, image, and multimedia databases) and more are supported. Database packages are suitable for academic, public, and other libraries. There is a staff-side view of CASE that allows staff to manage this data on a passworded web site. In the public view, users can search for resources by resource name, resource subject and journal title; by browsing an alphabetical list of resources; and also by doing a general search for all holdings within a particular database.
